Above, Sherri Douglas, youth services coordinator for Anchorage Municipal Libraries, reads to preschoolers and parents Wednesday on a People Mover bus parked at the Loussac Library. At right, Pam McKinney, center, listens with her daughter Lily McKinney, 5, and Cole Chatwell, 22 months, as Douglas reads "Horton Hears a Who." Schools across the nation joined in Read Across America Day, which coincides with the anniversary of the birthday of Theodor Geisel, aka Dr. Seuss. The day focuses on special book-related events and celebrates the joy of reading.
